Mischief? Laughter? That's what Fairies bring to the kingdom: a merry chaos that can topple giants. They are a gift that keeps on giving... even if you may have to offer your Crystals, Items and Monster trophies to other players!

On their side, Gladiators give the Enchanters the tools for (friendly) slaughter. Duel your opponents to give them Wounds, or strategically turtle up to fend off their attacks!

Angels (Sun Tower)

Pious clerics, iron-clad paladins, and luminous angels. Good deeds are the thing. Heal other players and benefit.

The Angels Deck is all about healing other players to benefit. The Wounds other players have are a currency you can spend to advance your efforts.

“Target player heals 1 ”: When this phrase is used as a cost on a card ability it means that you pick a player who has Wounds , this player heals 1 Wound  and you get the benefit. If no other player has any Wounds  you cannot use the ability because the cost cannot be paid.

Angel: The healing is applied after the combat is resolved and so the active player can get wounded and become the “player with most Wounds ”.

White Dragon: After getting the White Dragon, your Wounds  can no longer be healed, even by other players. They can still be transferred with abilities that state “transfer X of your Wounds  to other players”.

Demons (Hell's Gate)

Nobody wants those pesky little demons and their foul magic. That's why they make the best presents for your enemies.

Monster  Cards in the Demon Deck give negative points, but thankfully you can send them your opponent's way. Unless you have some way to benefit from them.

Universal Keywords

Negative Stats  :

A Broken Sword  Icon means negative Attack Points , and a Broken Shield  Icon means negative Defense Points . Players' Attack  and Defense Points  can never go below zero.
